THE COMSTOCK.

The Gold Hill News, of Thursday evening, gives its views concerning the present and prospective condition of the stock market and the mining situation; the bonanza prospects of the two extremities of the Comstock, and makes the improved prospects in the intermediate portion. We extract as follows:

The stock market is lively and healthy, with good prices and a tendency for better things. Dealers in mining stocks seem to be experiencing a return of confidence which is very gratifying, and still unaccompanied by extensive orders from outside. The questions are now more and more in demand, at stiffening prices. And the mines themselves are doing their part nobly, and showing better than ever. The great bonanza of the Comstock and Virginia and California has shown a handsome and notable dividend of $100,000, and particularly promises continuance of another month's production and resulting dividends with a vast undercurrent of rich ore in sight. The Imperial will add 500,000 to the wealth of the world this month, and Justice will come to the front with similar sums. Bear in mind that all this billion produced is something new; something never existed before. It is not a transfer of coin, stock here or there, or of valuables from one man to another, but a new wealth produced and sent forth into the world. Even the money expended in the work of its production is simply exchanging coin passed from one hand to another, but our billion comes up from the bowels of the earth as something new, a real addition to the wealth of the world.

Belcher is looking better in its southern portion, and Yellow Jacket is about crossing, perhaps to develop a good pile in the locality of the "making" of which it has been found in the level above. The winze commenced in the Hale and Norcross with the hope of developing a good and good facilities for prospecting and working the ground, and the hopes of Union are developments already found in the lower levels of that only paying mine, but those sanguine of its future, including the Imperial, lower levels of not only that mine but those contiguous to it, including the Imperial lower levels. With these good beginnings will be carried on in the Mexican and Union Consolidated properties for the money and time to show. The Scorpion, we hear, is to be set in motion, and it is to be hoped it will be fully developed, and the chimney of the Independent Associated Californian and Union Consolidated, upon the Comstock claims, be built on the Sierra Nevada. Comstock stocks are now in a healthy condition, and are being improved by the investigation of some thinking, but not so much so as to be considered certain of a considerable depth. As the other extremity of the lode, the Justice group of mines is rapidly coming into the second promotion, showing not only to the splendid ore showing and building product of the Justice mine, but the fine and important prospects on the Lady Washington in a short distance north. The Gold Canyon extremity of the Comstock is decidedly looking up.

It would be better for proof readers if all the Turkish generals were named Smith.

THE COMING ELECTION.

The San Francisco Call contains the annexed article on the result of the elections to take place preceding the Presidental contest. The information it divulges may be considered reliable:

Nothing of any importance, bearing on the Presidental election, is considered to have been decided by the Democratic majorities recently given in Kentucky and Alabama. The former is considered irreclaimably Democratic, while the many causes operating in the latter were of such a character as to forbid either party to claim it as reliable. However, as it had for some time past gone Democratic, no surprise was occasioned that it should remain true to its previous record.

Several elections are to come off before the 7th of November, in which much greater interest is felt. On the 4th of September Arkansas holds an election for State officers. Arkansas is Democratic, and if any considerable change should take place, it will particularly noted by the politicians. Vermont votes for State officers and members to the Forty-fifth Congress on the 5th of September. Vermont is Republican, yet the Democrats are making efforts to effect a change. The election in Maine for Governor and Congressmen to the Forty-fifth Congress, comes off on the 11th of September. The contest here will be unusually animated. The Republicans feel confident of their ability to carry the State. They have the prestige of Mr. Blaine's name, and the promise that he will exert his best abilities to aid them in the campaign. Still, the Democrats are not without hope that they may succeed. It is reported that they are exerting every energy to this end. The Georgia election for a Governor comes next—on the 4th of October. This State is conceded to the Democrats. The grandest struggle of all will be in Ohio and Indiana, on the 10th of October. If both these great States shoul go for either the Republicans or Democrats, they will exert a vast influence in deciding the Presidential election. If they should divide, the interest of the campaign will be still more intensified. The carrying of Ohio by the Republicans, however, is regarded as very important toward assuring the election to the Presidency of Mr. Hayes. On the same day elections will be held in West Virginia and Colorado. West Virginia is claimed by the Democrats. Colorado will cast her first vote since her admission into the Union as a State. Some curiosity is felt as to how she will define her political position, although it is rather believed she will go Republican.

The elections in these several States will be taken as "straws, to show which way the wind blows;" but their vote will not by any means be decisive. Their are many local causes to influence a State election which have no particular bearing a Presidential contest, although it cannot be denied that victory stimulates to renewed exertion on the one side, while it is correspondingly depressing to the other. There is always a large floating vote that goes with the popular party, and to catch this will be a prime object in the State elections, as an earnest of greater triumph to follow.

MEN, said Adam Smith, are naturally unsentimental. A man will scoop the bottom out of an egg without thinking that the mother of that egg is, perhaps, a hundred miles away, in the rain.

There is a great falling-off of little boys who try to ride on the behind end of a street car.
